He minimized its pinch on personal incomes by saying that a check this morning showed that a family of four with a $20,000 gross income next year would have to pay only $42 more.

Earlier today, the administration was wormed during a congressional hearing that approval of the surtax would depend on how the voters felt about it. Treasury Secretary William Simon, testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee, was biuntly warned that the administration faced a tough "public relations" job selling the idea to the nation.

Six Previous Trips

Officials in the Kissinger party admitted to newsmen aboard the plane that they were uncertain whether the change in administrations would have any impact on the Middle East negotiations. They said in separate conversations that they thought the rapport Mr. Kissinger had built up in his six previous trips-including one with Mr. Nixon-would be maintained.

It is generally agreed by Arabs and Israelis—as well as by Americans—that the next stage in Middle East diplomacy should include provisions for Egyptianand Jordanian-Israeli negotiations.

Newsmen were told that Mr. Kissinger was confident that in the seven days he plans to spend in the Middle East, he can work out at least a basic agreement on what diplomats call the "modalitles" of the negotiations—the time, place and format.

Various options have been worked out by Mr. Kissinger and his aides, newsmen were told. At the top of the list would be the visit to Washington of Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers or subordinates to discuss the next stage in the Sinai settlement with Mr. Kissinger and other of-

Other ideas discussed include talks in neutral territory under United Nations auspices or at Geneva, under the umbrella of the Middle East conference that met once last December and has not been reconvened since. American officials, convinced that the conference would only lead to public bickering at this stage, particularly over the issue of Palestinian representation, have shown little interest in its being called together again. Mr. Kissinger was reported pleased with the recent conciliatory sounding statements from Premier Yitzhak Rabin of Israel, offering to hold talks not only with the Egyptians but with the Jordanians. The Americans believe that Mr. Rabin has shown some political courage in talking about possible agreements on the West Bank of the Jordan in the face of strong opposition to any territorial changes by Israeli religious parties.

En route to Cairo, Mr. Kissinger's plane stopped for an nour at the Torrejon Air Base, near there, Mr. Kissinger conferred for an hour with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina.

Second Election This Year

British Voting Today; Labor Leads in Polls

By Alvin Shuster

LONDON, Oct. 9 (NYT) .-The British election campaign came to a close tonight, with the ruling Labor party holding a clear lead in the polls although many voters professed to be undecided.

The three-week campaign, the second this year for the British. left Prime Minister Harold Wilson confident that he would achieve what had escaped him in the February voting-an overall majority in the House of Com-mons. He had headed the first minority government here in more than 40 years. Conservative party politicians. led by Edward Heath, who was ousted as Prime Minister in February, privately expressed worry about their chances but cautioned that the polls had been wrong before. For the record,

Mr. Heath said that he, too, was confident of victory. "If we're wrong this time, we'll start packing," a polister said to-"There will be no way to explain it to anyone."

Polls Show Labor Lead

The polls have reflected a large Labor lead from the outset of the campaign and the latest ones showed Mr. Wilson's party between 5.5 and 14.5 per cent ahead of the Tories. This would sug-gest a possible landslide, but most experts predicted a narrower margin of victory.

There remain a number of imponderables, however, that discourage Labor politicians from

There is the memory of 1970 when the Conservatives upset the Labor party, which had enjoyed a big lead in the polls. A low turnout could hurt Labor if its supporters felt overly confident. And the large bloc of undecided voters represents an unknown, Moreover, the Liberal party, vote and 14 seats in February, is maintaining its strength in the polls. Its success seven months ago, coupled with that of nationalists in Scotland and Wales, left the balance of power of the 635 seats in the House of Com-mons in the hands of the smaller parties and deprived the Tories and Labor of an overall majority. The Liberals, who have been attracting increasing numbers of voters disenchanted with the major parties, were heartened today when the Guardian, for the first time since 1950, urged its readers to back them. "A strong Liberal vote is the best way: more Liberals in Parliament and more influence over the governing party," the newspaper said.

Liberals and the nationalists this time, experts predicted that La-bor's commanding lead in the polls should be enough to provide the party with a majority and Prime Minister Wilson with the mandate for moving Britain further left under a program calling for more nationalization of private industry. The campaign, dominated by the issues of inflation, rising unemployment and the threat of recession, failed to stir many voters. They expressed weariness at two elections in one year and said they found no answers in all the rhetoric to the nation's crucial economic problems

Several detached experts, including a historian here, called the campaign "irrelevant" because, in their view, the major parties sidestepped the question of just how to solve what all politicians agree is the gravest economic crisis since World War II. And many voters, worried ning at 17 per cent, said little emerged in the campaign to re-store their faith in the abilities of either of the major parties.

Low Vote Expected

Accordingly, analysts expected the turnout of voters to fall short of the 79 per cent who voted in February. At that time, Mr. Heath went to the country as Prime Minister in the midst of a coal miners' strike, a threeday week for much of British industry and widespread power blackouts.

Throughout this campaign, Mr. Wilson and other Labor party politicians sought to instill fear that a return to Conscrvative rule would mean another era of in dustrial strife and dim and cold rooms. They said Labor would bring peace with the unions rather than confrontation.

TEL AVIV, Oct. 9 (UPI).— Army troops today dispersed hundreds of religious Jews who forced their way into the Israelioccupied West Bank of Jordan to try to establish unauthorized settlements. Premier Yitzhak Rabin branded the would-be settlers outlaws.

What a military source described as the largest organized attempt to forcibly set up settlements in the region since Israel captured it from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war occurred as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was flying to Egypt.

He was scheduled to arrive in Israel from Jordan Saturday night on a trip that, in part, was to include the establishment of procedures for ironing out the territorial dispute between Jerusalem and Amman.

In sweltering heat, soldiers reinforced by helicopter-borne troops moved into at least three West Bank areas where the religious Jews staked out claims. They carried off dozens of passive demonstrators into buses ordered irio the region by the army,

Europe Cautious on U.S. Oil Stand

By Terry Robards

LONDON, Oct. 9 (NYT).— Western Europe has adopted an extremely cautious stance in reaction to a new and harder line on oil policy expressed in recent speeches by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kis-

While not openly disagreeing with the apparent toughening of the American position, govern-ment sources and diplomats in most Western European countries were reluctant to offer any endorsement. Some said they were not inclined to interpret the remarks of the American officials as a change in attitude.
Others said that they would be foolish to adopt any public posture that might jeopardize their relations with the oil-pro-ducing nations at a time when they depend on those nations for most of their energy supply.

The President and Mr. Kissinger said in separate speeches two weeks ago that the high oil prices set by the producer counprices set by the producer countries threatened a world recession. They also suggested that world safety and order had been jeopardized by the quadrupling of oil prices in the last year.

European government officials interviewed by correspondents of The New York Times were inclined to discount the Ford and Kissinger statements as having been motivated by political con-siderations, not by any firm conviction that a policy change was

A top government spokesman in West Germany said: "For us and the other Europeans, at this point it makes little sense to create the impression that a confrontation policy is what is going to result from the Washington conference."

"A great power like the United States can talk tougher," the West German spokesman said, "but it's not our impression that Kissinger wanted a confrontation. I think we were all agreed that confrontation is not desirable." French sources noted that more than 40 per cent of France's oil comes from Algeria and Libya, 15 per cent from Iraq and Saudi Arabia, and 28 per cent from

Persian Gulf producers. The of-ficial position is that if higher prices threaten a world recession, should try to find a reasonable solution together. "If we are facing doomsday," said a high official, "then this is something we'd better talk about with the Arabs. They have as much a stake as we in trying to prevent catastrophe."

A Swiss official, noting that his country had not been involved in any of the Washington talks, commented tersely: "Public state-ments are not policy" Another Swiss official said that "intimidation is never an acceptable basis for cooperation." A source in Brussels observed that all the European countries were generally much more de-

Eberle Assures EEC That U.S.

By David Haworth

BRUSSELS, Oct. 9 (IHT).-WIIliam Eberle, the President's special trade representative, today assured the European Economic Community that the United States does not intend to introduce any export or import controls in the wake of the anti-inflation packages President Ford announced to Congress yesterday. But Mr. Eberle made it clear in talks with European Commission President François-Xavier Ortoli and several other commis that the United States expects the EEC in return to introduce a voluntary import limitation scheme -particularly of animal feed

"We went to see an open mar ket." Mr. Eberle said, "not one in which the principle of beggar my neighbor operates." He added that it is still the United States' view that general restrictions on ex-ports will not be necessary.

Although there has so far been no official REC reaction to Mr. Eberle's visit, it is clear he leaves a slightly skeptical attitude be-hind him. There is anxiety here, reflecting recent comments by West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, that the U.S. anti-inflation program could have serious effects on European economies.

Allaying Fears The purpose of Mr. Eberle's world trip, which culminates in Japan, is to allay such fears. He pointed out that although there have been cuts in federal spending, the U.S. budget is still 12 per cent higher than in 1973.

He told a press conference that the U.S. purpose is to achieve "neutral growth," not to defiate. President Ford's package was, he

The 63-16 Senate vote on the Turkish aid cutoff in the money bill put both branches of Congress on record for aid suspension by majorities substantially more than the two-thirds required to override a veto.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (NYT). -President Ford's new economic program would make a modest difference to most taxpayers, a potentially significant difference to workers who have lost their jobs and have no unemployment compensation-but, according to analysts, make little difference to the current problems of the national economy, including infla-depressed housing industry.

As for inflation, the program contains little that is new. The budget will be held, if Congress cooperates, to $300 hillion. The new Council on Wage and Price Stability will "monitor" wage and price behavior and hold public hearings. Yet another commission will be appointed to examine government regulatory practices with no prospects for early action.

Most of the effect the President's program would have apart from his appeal to the public to save food and gasolinedepends upon concurrence by Congress, which is anything but assured. The situation is markedly different from that of Aug. 15, 1971, when the only action required of Congress in President Nixon's program of controls, devaluation of the dollar and economic stimulus was tax

This time it is highly possible that Congress will cut taxes more than the President wants, raise other taxes less than he wants, and enact a more liberal program of unemployment assistance than he has asked, all of which would enlarge the budget deficit. And thus he could wind up vetoing his own program as inflationary. As for the energy part of the program, much of it has been around for a long time, and the

Rejecting Drastic Changes

House Votes Mild Reform of Proced

By Mary Russell

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (WP). The House last night rejected a sweeping proposal for reform of its committee system and procedures and adopted instead a milder proposal that left most of the committees' jurisdiction intact, although it changed some

By a 203-to-165 vote, the House accepted mild changes recom-mended by a committee of the Democratic caucus headed by Rep. Julia Hansen, D-Wash. At the same time it rejected almost two years of work by a select bipartisan committee headed by Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo.

It also rejected an effort to compromise the two proposals, offered by Rep. David Martin, R-Neb., Rep. Bolling's co-chairman, by a 319-to-41 vote. The vote was a victory for many committee chairmen and liberal Democrats of middle seniority who opposed the Bolling

The measure, the product of nearly two years of work, was spurred to final passage by the Watergate scandal and revelations of 1972 election fund-raising abuses. Its objective is to stiffe the influence of big labor and business contributors who expect political favors in return for their contributions to political candi-

Proposal Rejected

Before final action, the Senate rejected, 61 to 16, a move by Sen, James Buckley, Conservative-Republican of New York, to send the bill back to conference to write in a provision allowing challengers in federal campaigns to spend 30 per cent more than allowed to incumbents. He said low spending ceilings reflected the "unprecedented cynicism" of provisions designed to make it impossible for a little-known challenger to oust an incumbent The bill puts a $20-million spending limit on the presidential candidate of any major perty, a $70,000 limit on spending by a House candidate, and corresponding Senate limits based on population. It also limits to $1,000 the amount any individual may contribute to the campaign of any candidate for federal office, and to $5,000 the amount any organisation may contribute.

Revolutionary Feature The most revolutionary feature is a new system of public financing for presidential primaries

U.S. Said to Fund Jewish Emigrés

BRUSSELS, Oct. 9 (Renters). -The United States is providing funds for two private welfare organizations looking after humdreds of Soviet Jews in Belginm after falling to settle in Israel, a Belgian Foreign Ministry spokesman said today.

The spokesman was replying to questions at his regular weekly press briefing about the situation of Soviet Jews who have arrived here in recent weeks from Israel and who for the most part want to go to North America.

He said the two organizations the Belgian branch of Caritas Catholica and the Russian emigré Tolstoy Foundation—were being funded for their work on bahalf of the Jews by the U.S. refugee program. The spokesman said that there were now at least 800 Soviet Jews in Belgium,

He can also receive subfor his campaign in the presidential primaries. A similar public financing dates, opposed by President Ford and House conferees, was dropped from the final bill.

The bill won warm praise from Sen. Scott; Rules Committee Chairman Howard Cannon D-Nev., who headed the Senate conferees; Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, a key sponsor, and Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa.

But Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., a member of the conference com-mittee, said that, because of the iniquitous" public financing feature for presidential primaries and elections, he voted against it as a matter or principle, despite his support for many of the other provisions of the bill. He said he favored contribution and expenditure limits, the creation of an independent elections commission with civil enforcement powers to supervise the new law, and a $15,000 annual limit (which he said should be zero) on honorariums for speeches or articles by members of Congress and the executive branch.

But he called public financing "raid on the taxpayers" that would stifle the spirit of volunteer participation in politics, and would grant part of an indidates he opposes.

tion of all House Democrats. "I wouldn't think there would be any possibility of stopping" the reform movement, Rep. Bolling said. "I would think this is just the beginning."

Trouble Spots

One "useful thing," Rep. Bolling said, "is that it gives us a good idea of where the trouble spots are. There is only one real terrible thing, and that is that the opportunity to modify Ways and Means' incredible jurisdiction" is lost.

Rep. Bolling's committee would have taken away from the powerful Ways and Means Committee jurisdiction over trade, revenuesharing and the non-tax aspects of health and unemployment compensation.

Labor fought hard against the Bolling report because it split the Education and Labor Committee in two. Rep. Bolling said "most of the great issues of labor," from taxes to unemployment compen-sation, are handled by the Ways and Means Committee.

Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La. a member of the Hansen committee, said the Bolling proposal lost because "it was too drastic, it went too far, too quick" and added that it would have been unworkable and impossible to put into effect by the beginning of the next session

He said the Hansen committee's it was milder and there were fewer questions about it. It was simply better, because it will produce a more orderly flow of legislation next year."

Obvious Turgets

Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., another member of the Hansen committee, said the principal thing he thought members ob-jected to was the "obvious targeting" by the Bolling committee on the Ways and Means, Education and Labor, Merchant Marine and Fisheries and Post Of-

Under Rep. Bolling's proposal the Post Office Committee would have been abolished; Education and Labor would have been split, and the others would have lost considerable jurisdiction.

The Bolling committee generally would have limited members to service on one major committee, and Rep. Thompson said he thought that provision "left in limbo" many juntor members of committees who, he said, would "be susceptible to being bumped from their committee assign-

By George C. Wilson WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (WP).-

The Interior Department intends to offer oil companies 19.1 million cres for offshore driling next year, Under Secretary John Whitsker disclosed yesterday.

. If drilling rigs find oil, the industries that would spring up on shore to handle the petroleum would have a tremendous impact on coastal states. 🔗 Mr. Whitaker said the Ford administration would work with states as the offshore drilling program progressed. He said Interior Secretary Rogers Morton would meet with governors of coastal states soon as part of this

Memo Disclosed

An Interior Department memo, disclosed last week, said in part that Mr. Whitaker wanted a leasing schedule laid out that included "10 million acres leased in 1975, not just 19 million offered. A controversy erupted after the disclosure, with Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., charging that the Interior Department "lied to us" about its plans. The department said the memo was designed to obtain recommendations, and did not commit it "to a definite course of action."

The size and geographic spread of the program outlined yester-day by Mr. Whitaker dwarfs anything undertaken in the past and seems to guarantee the continuance of the controversy.

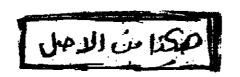

This is the government's "tentative" leasing program for next year, as outlined by Mr. Whitaker. The acreage is the offshore area to be offered, not necessarily purchased, by oil companies.

Lisbon Navy Picks Leftist As Junta Aide

LISBON, Oct. 9 (Reuters).— Navy officers of the left-leaning Armed Forces Movement—now the main power in Portugal have chosen a leading leftist commander as their acting representative on the ruling seven-man military junta, it was disclosed

A presidential spokesman said that Comdr. Silvano Ribeiro, chief of cabinet in the Naval Staff Of-fice, was picked to take over provisionally from Adm. Antonio Rosa Coutinho.

Adm. Coutinho, nicknam "red admiral" for his leftist views. said recently that the pressure of his duties in Angola meant that he would have to be replaced on the junta for the time being. The election of Comdr. Ribeiro,

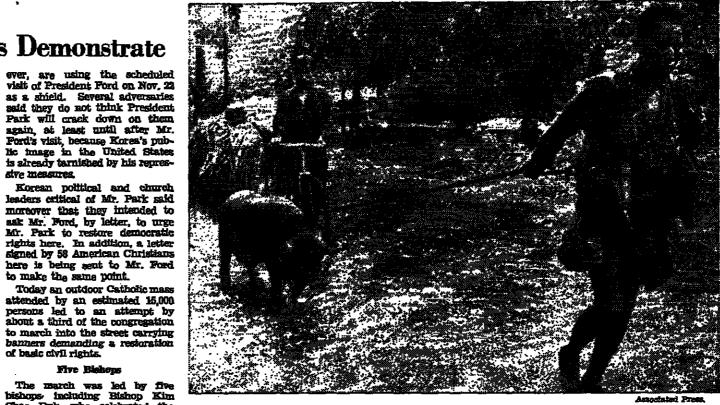

50, reputed to be a leading figure in the Armed Forces Movement, leaves only two original members on the junta, which took control after the April military coup. They are Gen. Francisco da Costa Gomes, who recently be-came President of Portugal, and Adm. Pinheiro de Azevedo. Ouster of Spinola

The officers who have left the junta are Gen. Antonio de Spi-nois, who was ousted as president in a major political crisis nine days ago, and three of his conservative supporters.

The presidential spokesman also announced that Navy Lt. Jose Manuel Judas, a member of the powerful coordinating commission of the Armed Forces Movement, had been appointed to the 21-man Council of State, a watchdog body, that also includes civilians. Meanwhile, Communist party leader Alvaro Cunhal suggested at a press conference that the foreign press had misrepresented the role of his party since the

Ford, Brezhnev Reportedly Will Meet Soon

By Murrey Marder

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (WP). President Ford and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev are preparing for an early "get acqualuted" meeting, probably in the Pacific area at the end of the ment month it was learned yesterday. Confidential, top-level discus-tions are under way about holding the Ford-Brezhnev meeting in the Pacific region in conjunction with Mr. Ford's planned travel to Japan, Nov. 19-21, and to South Kores, Nov. 22-23.

The projected Ford-Brezhnev meeting would preferably be in "a third country," meaning neither the United States nor the Soviet Union nor Japan nor Korea. The site may be a Pacilic island, or a country bordering the Pacific which is politically acceptable to both sides. Some Discussion

In order to maintain the momentum of U.S.-Soviet détente, the policy of reducing tensions, both sides agreed it would be beneficial for President Ford and Mr. Brezhnev to meet before the distant mid-1975 date in the regular summit series. Discussions then and afterward turned to a possible time and place for holding such an intermediate, less-formal Ford-Brezhnev meeting in a setting distinct from the elaborately staged summit conferences in Moscow and Washington, Some midway point was suggested and with President Ford's planned travel to Japan and South Korea, the idea developed of combining his trip to the Asian-Pacific region with a Brezhnev meeting in that area. Mr. Kissinger's scheduled trip to

Old Ideas for New Needs

Britain's Election

President Ford, in his address on the econcmy, met the expectations of many and the hopes of few. He projected candor and appeal-especially to his immediate audience, the Congress-while relying largely on the existing context of ideas, agencies and stattees for his practical approach, and on very broad concepts of cooperation and individual initiative in his moral suasion.

The program may work. The President evoked many latent sources of innovative activity within the system of American government and economy that eventually might achieve the goal of "total mobilization" of "the brains, the skills and the willpower of the American people" which Mr. Ford put forward. But as a response to an urgent crisis which the President rightly described as able, unless whipped, "to destroy our country, our homes, our liberty, our property and finally our national pride as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy." Mr. Ford's specific proposals seem inadequate.

It must be added that while President Ford has been told this by many critics, as he sketched his economic ideas in earlier statements, few have been able to make specific suggestions for concrete policies to substitute for his-and those who did so were contradicted by most of the rest. "Stagflation" on a global scale; rising prices and growing unemployment on the national level, are not phenomena with which the present state of the economic art is able to cope. But that is all the more reason why skilled experimentation is called for, rather than reliance upon old devices and even older rhetoric.

when he made his first inaugural address. To be sure, Mr. Ford also said that the present situation does not "approach the emergency of 1933." But just as the conventional wisdom of four decades ago was insufficient to meet the Great Depression, so the economic sages of today are confused by what is happening now and may happen tomorrow. Roosevelt experimented, and while some of his initiatives failed, and the success of his whole New Deal was placed in question when World War II set up an entirely new set of conditions, much of what he wrought remains as a very useful fabric of socio-economic legislation.

Moreover, what the New Deal did accomplish in its own time was to establish a standard of striving toward which men of good will could repair to in battling the economic and psychological effects of the Depression. It had its slogans and its symbols, like the button with the acronymic WIN (for "Whip Inflation Now") which Mr. Ford wore during his speech. But the Blue Eagles of the 1930s stood for something specific, something which had a statutory and administrative

Ford: Nibbling the Bullet

By James Reston

WASHINGTON President Ford he thinks they should do. We has now defined the economic crisis of the nation and proposed a catalogue of remedies. The question now is whether the solutions he proposed are equal to the crisis he defined, and the fear here is that he didn't bite the bullet but pibbled it.

In these abnormal times, and especially a month before the offyear congressional elections, he put forward some unpopular and politically bold proposals, but the whole thrust of his speech to the Congress was that the nation was in mortal danger, and he asked that we mutually pledge to each other, not "our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor," but our comfort, our support, and 5 per cent of our gas and oil.

It would be hard to overemphasize the relief in Washington to find a President stating with the utmost sincerity, his belief about what had to be done in the interests of the republic. And for the first time in years, to see a Congress that accepts him at his word, without doubting his motives.

Bad as War

Still, his proposals, honest and sensible as they were, scarcely measure up to the spectacular menace and danger he put before the Congress. Inflation was as bad as war, he suggested, while refusing to call for a decisration of war, "We have had enough early warnings," he said. "... The time to intercept [the enemy inflation] is almost gone." But he didn't intercept it.

"I say to you with all sincerity," Ford remarked in the peroration of his speech, "that inflation, our present public enemy, will-unless is whipped-destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property, and finally our national pride—as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy."

Maybe it was wrong to define the question in military terms, and even to regret the absence of a Pearl Harbor to wake us up, but when he got down to program of remedies, he was bold in his own framework as a conservative Republican leader, but scarcely bold in the framework of the world problem he now has to handle.

The inflation-recession problem is moving faster than he thought and the outlook now is that he is going to have to face 7 per cent unemployment by mid-year of 1975. He made concessions. which must seem to him as almost radical, in offering public jobs to the unemployed and other breaks to the poor, but again his estimate is probably far short of the need.

Even most liberal economists agree that we don't need mandatory wage and price controls, but we do need much tougher controls over pattern-setting unions and businesses. Apparently, the President is convinced that he should start with appeals to patriotism, and voluntary controls that bark but don't bite. At least he has made a beginning. In his speech to the Congress, he has told his colleagues in the executive branch, his old friends on Capitol Hill and the American people what he wants them to do. It is early for him but late for the Congress, which is yearn-ing to campaign for next month's election. If nothing else, he has clarified the problem for the average responsible family. He has finally told them what

In his address to the Congress. are in trouble, he has said. Whatever the President or the Congress decide, we can't make it unless you save gas, oil and money, and help the country in an awkward time.

This is typical of Gerald Ford. He sees the world crisis and suggests laws to deal with it, but basically he believes that appealing to the American people for voluntary sacrifices will work-or at least must be tried before introducing compulsory legislation, and he may be right.

Still in Transition He is still in that transition period between being a partisan leader and a national leader, and the world economic crisis has come down on him before he has had time to figure out the dif-

he proposed policies which he would obviously have opposed in his 25 years in the House of Representatives, but he has still not caught up with the radical national and world economic problem his advisers in the cabinet are putting before him.

His instinct, and it is the center of his life, is that first you must go to the people-appeal to them, organize them, give them a chance—and only then, if they don't come through, pass laws to compel what the country needs. Washington admires this but doubts that it will meet the national crisis he defined in such dramatic terms, but it likes him and believes in his sincerity, and his caution. At least he nibbled the bullet and this is probably about as much as the country is

Without War

Economic Solution

By Leonard Silk

NEW YORK.—Wer is mankind's historic pseudo-cure for economic and social ills.... Inevitably these days, in the midst of rampant inflation, growing memployment, economic stagnation, famine in the poor lands and a threatened world monetary breakdown that could result from the sky-high price of oil and the vast flow of money to the oil-exporting countries, fears of war

are rising. Those fears dogged last week's meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development—the World Bank-in Washington. One heard them expressed in many private discussions, and sometimes even from the rostrum of the cavernous auditorium of the Sheraton-

Park Hotel. "Is it not tragic," said Mubashir Hasan the Pinance Minister of Pakistan, "that it is mainly when nations have plunged themselves into wars that there has been a sudden sport of creative activity on the production front? Men and women have toiled day and night, instead of working five days a week and schieved technological breakthroughs which have tremendously boosted production and helped usher in new eras of prosperity later on."

Ghastly Secret?

Is this mankind's ghastly little secret—that we really need war to provide the spur for creative activity and social cohesion, to inspire and develop all that is "best" in men?

Some scholars have long thought so. For instance, Prof. Everett E. Hagen of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in his studies of Japan, concluded that military threats to a nation may be a powerful force toward economic growth, especially if combined with internal forces pushing toward technological develop-

This is no new thought. The ancients put great stress on the threats of enemies in developing the genius of a nation.

To be sure, the price of war as an elixir of nations has been going up. "Winners emerge from wars as losers," said the Pakistani minister, "and losers are obliterated."

In the Past

But, in the past, fruitful activity followed war. International organizations were created to expand trade, to maintain employment and real incomes, to reconstruct and develop economies on a more equitable and just basis.

That was the story of World War II and the Bretton Woods institutions — the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank—that emerged from it. And those are the institutions that are now struggling for their survival. For the postwar era appears to have exhausted itself, and subtly, horribly, been converted into what feels like a prewar era. Is mankind preparing itself again for one of its dark nights of creation?

Yet, as Mr. Hasan put h question before the world to whether the destruction bloodshed that a global control of the state of the stat involves is really a prere to a sport in productive s by nations and to a rest; ing of the international ec order on a just basis. "Must the nations first the terrible sacrifice of hunand property before they themselves to taking thos decisions which alone wou mankind from starvatlo

Oil and Politics

Among the profusion of official statements, editorials et al, concerning the impact of oil prices on the stability of world economic order, there appears surprisingly scarce mention of a factor which ought to command serious consideration,

Granting that the old order of things had kept the price of crude oil, for years, at unconitably low levels and that the OPEC counbries were fully entitled to exact their radical revision; assuming, further, that presently imposed prices are justifiable, in relation with those of other commodities, it may still be argued that the desired readjustment of prices greatly mitigated havoc in the economic structure, if relevant decisions at the OPEC conferences had been motivated more predominantly by economic, rather than political, considerations. Since the selling price of crude oil had to be set by factors entirely independent of its cost of extraction, the parties concerned disposed of full liberty to formulate a schedule whereby the said price would be progressively increased to reach any indexed level desired, over a period of several

Consumer countries could thus be given the minimum of time required to adjust their economies scale of comparative energy costs. while producers could plan for development of their economies and enhance capacity to absorb increased oil revenues.

The chances of finding a way avoid worldwide economic disruption along the above line look, at first sight, at least as promising as those portended by high-sounding polemics. T. KARAKASH. Geneva.

That is where the stereotype has brought us. Years of hardsell about women being only as good as their bodies has brought us to the day when most women fear a mastectomy not because it means they have a very good chance of dying, but because their husbands may be turned off. # REPUBLIC OF CHINA IN TAIWAN CELEBRATES 63rd ANNIVERSARY

President Chiang Leads His People in Vigorous Self-Reliance

TAIPEI.--When the international political going gets rough the people of the Republic of China fall back on the wisdom and counsel of President Chiang Kai-shek

The guidance of the chief executive is epitomized in one of the special messages he addressed to the nation during the turbulent times of the early 1970s.

"Don't be disquieted in time of adversity," he bade the people. "Be firm with dignity and self-reliant

Administrative reins of the Republic of China are in the able hands of Premier Chiang Ching-kuo. But President Chiang contirrues to set the course, just as he has for nearly 50 years.

President Chiang also continues to make the crucial decisions and to give his views to the pecple on matters of the highest importance.

In his directive to the ruling Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) late in 1973, the President said that many people harbor the illusion that peace in our time can be attained through compromise and detente with the Commu-

"They do not core," he said, "if justice is sacrificed and the distinction of right from wrong is abondoned. Consequently, civilized order has been plunged into unprecedented choos.

"Viewed in depth," he continued, "the turmoil provides a test of our unswerving confidence and will power which may awaken the appeasers from their illusion. This may be regarded as a turning point on the conti-Communist and anti-totalitarian road."

President Chiang said that aside from their own internal contradictions and endless power struggle, the Chinese Communists cre being torn apart by the counterforce of the Chinese cultural tradition. Commuruns against the spiritual faith of the Chithe President said. and the Peiping regime is therefore "counterattacked and resisted by the peo-

The Kuominiang's basic policy, he added, is never to negotiate or compromise with the Chinese Communists.

Always the practitioner of a simple life, President Chiang warned against hedonism in his New Year's message for 1974.

The most serious weakness of civilization is the increasing tendency of people to seek material satisfaction, with the result that the spiritual side and the material side of civilization are no longer in balonce. This has led to the paradoxical cycle of the greater the development. the greater the distress.

As a result of Communist instigation and machination, wars and disasters follow one another endlessly, so that the more people fear war, the greater the chance of war. People resort to appearement under the pretense of seeking peace and are willing to substitute evil for justice and reason. . . Today only we revolutionaries still believe that men eventually will return to reason. The President declared that the Chinese Communist movement to criticize Confucius and exalt Ch'in Shih-huang, the First Emperor of Ch'in (221-206 B.C.), was "intended to besmirch and destroy our culture" and to prepare for a "new cultural revolution which would threaten the very existence of our mainland compatriots."

On the occasion of World Freedom Day, Janucry 23, 1974, the Chinese chief executive asserted that people everywhere were awakening to the danger of Communism and that those behind the Iron Curtain were opposing slavery and seeking freedom. The World Freedom Day movement, he added, "is a natural force rising with the tides of the times.

On Youth Day last March 29, he referred again to the Communists' denigration of Confucius, saying:

"Such essentials of Confucian philosophy as benevolence, propriety, filial and fraternal affection, loyalty and mutual consideration, universal love and hormony—in short, the whole succession of personal cultivation, family discipline, orderly government and world peaceare not the teachings of one person or one school

"These essentials represent the crystalization of the long process of Chinese culture and history brought to magnificent fruition by Confucius. These essentials are not only vital to the Chinese people but also provide basic guidelines for the continued existence of the whole human community and express the norms of human relationships."

Mac Tse-tung, he said,
"is criminally attempting to destroy our country and people by annihilating our history and culture."

"Many young people and intellectuals on the mainland are courageous and heroic," the President continued. "They eventually will turn their specihead from Mao's pretended target of anti-feudalism and aim it against Maoist enslovement They will also wake from the nightmore of Mao's class struggle and turn against the Maoists to attain freedom of thought"

President Chiang re-mains resolutely determin-ed to nail Mao's pelt to the wall.

No man in the world knows Communism better. Chiang Kai-shek went to the Soviet Union in 1923 at the order of the Republic of China's founding father, Sun Yat-sen. His assignment—only two years after establishment of the Chinese Communist Portywas to find out what made Communism tick and report to Dr. Sun.
The Kuomintang's young military genius was quick to discern that Communism was a tyranny totally unsuited to the new China of the Republic. He gave this view to Dr. Sun upon his return.

With China unified by the Northward Expedition that defeated the warlords, Chiang Kai-shek quickly found out what the Soviets had in mind. Instigated and armed by Moscow, the Chinese Communists mounted one provincial rebellion ofter another.

The years from the late 1920s to the beginning of the War of Resistance Against Japan in 1937 had to be devoted largely to suppressing of the Communist rebellion.

The conflict with Japan lasted eight years—a period which tragically gave the Communists time to recover from their march to the caves of Yenan. Their promises to join battile against the Japanese were not kept. V-J Day found the Communists ready to receive captured Japanese weapons from the Soviets and resume their rebellion.

Exhausted by the eightyear war, the government could not stop the Communists from seizing the mainland. It moved to Taiwan in 1949 to continue the anti-Communist struggle.

He rebuilt the armed forces of the ROC and made Taiwan into China's first model province—the most prosperous and advanced in Chinese history.

He himself has not been disquieted in an era of reverses. He is firm in his dignity and vigorously self-reliant.

This "old soldier," as he described himself upon assuming the presidency of the Republic of China for the fifth time, remains lands. supremely confident that the free Chinese government will soon restore treedom and democracy to the mainland.

TAIPEI — Economic growth of the Republic of China will not exceed the record of 12.3 percent this

That was the figure for 1973. But inflation and the petroleum crisis intervened late in that year and continued into 1974.

The gross national product is expected to show an advance of between 8 and 10 per cent in real terms despite severity of the economic buffeting. Not many developing countries will do better.

Two-way foreign trade should reach U.S. $11 billion, compared with the U.S. $8.3 billion of last year. The gain should be enough to keep the Republic of China (14,000 square miles and 16 million people) ahead of the Chinese Communist-held mainland (3.7 million square miles and 700 million to 800 million people) for the third straight vear. Taiwan trade, which has been favorable since 1970, probably will be in the red for 1974. Foreign exchange reserves are more than adequate to cover the deficit, which results from the skyrocketing prices of raw materials and capital goods. Industrial growth will be around 12 per cent and manufacturing slightly less than that. These figures are approximately half of those attained in 1973 but still a long way from the stagnation which has afflicted the economies of some countries. Foreign and overseas Chinese investment has continued to flow into Taiwon. The government took steps to abet incentives and make the investment climate even more attractive than before. The influx of capital will be less than the U.S. $249 million of 1973 but still sufficient to comy the cumulative total close to U.S. $1,300 million. Americans continued to be the biggest investors with the electrical machinery industry as their overwhelming first choice. Nearly every big U.S. home communications receiver company has a Taiwan factory. Investments range from a few million to more than U.S. $25 million.

Overseas Chinese occupy second place. They favor textiles and services. especially hotels.

Japanese are third with a wide variety of investments. New investors from japan disappeared only briefly citer Tokyo recognized the Peiping regime in September of 1972. Joponese money soon was back, as were Japanese tourists. Entrepreneurs are drawn to Taiwan by reasonable wages for skilled and loyal workers as well as by tax incentives, export processing zones with free port advantages and government guidance and assisionce from first inquiry to the start of production. Wages have risen and Taiwan is no longer the cheap labor capital of industrializing Asia. But today's investors also are looking for the literacy, knowledge and special abilities that are emerging from on excellent system of education.

Taiwan industrialization began in the 1950s with small plants making products for import substitution –textiles, electric fans and other small appliances, household necessities and processed foods.

Soon the supplies were sufficient for domestic consumption. Manufacturers began to seek export mar-

Textiles was the biggest import substitution industry and quickly became the No. 1 exporter. Overseas textile sales are headed for the U.S. $2,000 million mark.

The electrical machinery industry grew from the nimble fingers of girls. TV, radio and taps recorder manufacturers thronged Taiwan, where their products could be assembled at a tenth of the U.S. cost.

At first, 100 per cent of parts and components were imported Local manufacturers learned from Western example and acquired the knowhow to become subcontractors. American, Japanese and Dutch electrical machinery manufacturers now obtain an increasing share of their materials locally at savings in unit and transportation costs. Heavy industry came to Taiwan slowly. Automobiles have been made for years. But the process was primarily one of as-sembling Japanese parts. Ships also were made, but virtually on a custom basis. Taiwan hand-built yachis are well known in the United States.

Ten Basic Projects Will Help Taiwan Achieve Developed Status

TAIPEI — The Republic of China in Taiwan has increased its gross national product about twentyfold in the last 20 years. Its island province has moved from the ranks of agriculturally based economies to advanced status among developing industricitized Infrastructure is likely to fall behind when an economy grows by 10 per cent or more annually. This has been the case in Taiwan—partly because of the huge cost of basic construction and partly because the government wished to avoid grandiose projects.

By 1973, however, har-bors were bursting their seams. Inland transportation was creating under loads much heavier than it had been expected to carry. The iron and steel in-dustry was too small to serve burgeoning heavy industry. Synthetic textile and plastic industries were demanding ever increasing supplies of petrochemical intermediates. Premier Chicag Chingkuo and the Executive Yuan (Cabinet) decided that the infrastructure has to be expanded and modemized regardless of cost. Plans were made and blueprints drawn up for Ten Basic Projects to give the Republic of China rank among the developed countries of the world by the end of the 1970s. The cost will be in excess of U.S. $5,100 million to be appropriated and borrowed over a period of five years ending in mid-1979. These are the projects:

--- North-South Freeway. -Electrification of the west coast mainland rail--Sugo-Huglien railroad construction on the northeast coast. ---Airport for Taipei at Tooyuan.

Thermal, hydroelectric and nuclear power plants.

—Petrochemical indus-

-Steel mill. —Kachsiung shipyard. -Taichung port.

-Suao port. Construction of the North-South Freeway to link the northern port of Keelung and southern port of Kachsiung by way of Taipet is already well under way. The first section of 42 miles was opened in mid-1974. Total length of the road will be 235 miles. Cost will be close to U.S. $1,000 million.

Nine-tenths of Taiwan's 16 million people live along the fertile west coast plain which will be served by the expressway. Tangible economic benefits are expected to reach U.S. $2,000 million by 1995. The cost will be regained in 20 years from tolls amounting to some U.S. $52 million annually.

Width of the road will vary from four to eight lones, depending on local traffic conditions. There will be 39 interchanges. No tall stations will be established in metropoliton creas, thus encourage. ing use of the freeway to relieve urban traffic congestion.

By June of 1978, buses and trucks and private cars will require only five hours for the trip between Taipei and Kaohsiung, the island's biggest cities.

Electrification of the rail-road paralleling the North-South Freeway will increase carrying capacity by a third, reduce running time at the same rate and cut energy consumption by about one-half. Contracts have been signed with General Electric of the United States for locomotives and replacement of tracks, with GE of Great Britain for control and communications systems and power transmission, and with E.M. Ericksson of Sweden for traffic control equipment.

Construction will get under way early in 1975 and be completed before the end of 1978. The rate of investment return on the U.S. $400 million project is estimated at 17.3 percent ginnually.

Express passenger trains was take only four hours for the Taipei-Kachsiung journey. Fast freights will make the trip in five hours. Ninety-four locomotives will draw power from 25,000-volt overhead transmission lines.

Taiwan does not yet have an around-the-island railroad system. The present mainline extends from south of Kaohsiung on the west coast to Taipei and then around the northern bend of the island to Sugo on the northeast coast.

On last Christmas Day construction began on a railroad which will connect Sugo with Huglien and eventually make onetrain travel possible be-tween Kachsiung and Taitung.

The 55-mile line will have 19 tunnels and 14 bridges. Crews are tunneling and digging through the mountains from both the Huglien and Sugo termini. Completion is expected by mid-1978 with partial service beginning in late 1976 or early 1977.

This short stretch of hard to build railroad will open up Talwan's last frontier. The east coast is underpopulated because of transportation isolation. Highways between Suao and Hualien and between Hualien and Taichung on the west coast are fre-quently blocked by landslides.

The east coast has vast marble and limestone deposits. Lumber, gold and copper are other resources. Hualien has a small international part which will acquire greater value with completion of the railroad Some of Toiwan's finest scenery is found in Huglien and Taitung counties. Totpet's Sungshan International Airport is running out of room for expension. Located only 15 minutes from downtown Taipei, it handled 3.1 million passengers and 85,000 metric tons of freight last year, -The new airport for Tao yuan will be about 18 miles southeast of the capital, a fast-growing industrial center. First-phase construction to be completed by 1978 will provide capacity for 5 million passengers and 200,000 metric tons of freight. Subsequent expansions will take care of northern Taiwan's airport requirements until at least the year 2000.

A five-mile cirport road will feed into the North-South Freeway and provide 30-minute travel to Topei. There will be three terminal buildings, on airport hotel and 22 parking aprons. One of the three runways will be 12,000 feet

Taiwan Power Company capacity must be raised to nearly 20 million kilowater by 1985. The island's first nuclear generator will be in operation by October of 1976 and the second a year later. Six other nucleor units are planned. Installed and potential hydroelectric generation totals nearly 8 million kilowatts. Taipower's biggest thermal plant will begin generation the middle of next year. Located at Talin near Kaohsiung, it will have capacity of 1,850,000

Petrochemical plants will be built in complexes ground Chinese Petroleum Corporation refineries in the north and south. One naphtha cracker is already in production and a secand and third are under construction. Planning has started for a fourth plant to produce such intermediates as ethylene, propylene, butadiene, ethylene glycol and benzene.

Private investors are spending more than U.S. $200 million on downstream industries to make such products as polyacrylonitrile, DMT, caprolactam and artificial rubber.

Preliminary construction has begun for an integrated steel mill at Kachsiung. Initial capacity will be 1.5 million tons annually of pig iron and steel ingot, plate, wire and rods. USS Engineers and Consultants Inc. of U.S. Steel will supply technical services and supervision in building the U.S. $700 million plant. Work has been under way for more than a year on the world's second biggest drydock at Kachsiung. The China Shipbuilding Corporation will turn out 1.5 million tons of vessels annually and have repair capacity of 2.5 million tons. Contracts are already in hand for four 450,000-ton tonkers. Investment has come from the United States, Liberia and Great Britain as well as the free Chinese government, which owns 55 per cent of the stock.

Harbor congestion has been a worsening headache for Taiwan with growth of foreign trade at rates of 50 per cent and more. Major expansion programs are under way at Keelung, which has geographical limitations, and Kachstung,

Construction of a new international part began at Wuchi, near Taichung on the west central coast, in October of 1973. Troffic will begin in 1976 with onnuci volume of 3 million tons and reach 12 million tons by 1978. The island's second biggest industrial zone will be developed around Taichung Port

"I think Baja represents one of the last frontiers in paleontology," Mr. Applegate said. He noted that the explorations so far, carried out chiefly in July and September of this year, were only preliminary surveys and involved no excavations.

Although geologists had reported the presence of fossils in the Baja peninsula many years ago, little further examination of the petrified bones had followed because of the region's harsh terrain and climate. In 1965, Mr. Applegate visited the area and found one exposure of fossils.

This year, with a recently completed paved road to the southern tip of the Baja perinsula, the logistics of an expedition became simpler and 17 additional exposures were located. In some cases fossils cover the ground for areas of 10 to 12 square miles, Mr. Applegate said.

The explorations were carried out by Mexican geology students under the direction of Mr. Applegate and Mr. Morris and a professor of paleontology from the University of Mexico, Ismael Ferrusquia. The National Geographic Society provided the money,

The Chick-Pea: The Bean of the Ancient World

WAVERLEY ROOT

MAN began cultivating the original wild ancestor no longer exists anywhere in the world, not even in its native region, which, according to AIphonse de Candolle's "Origin of Cultivated Plants" (1833), was south of the Caucasus and north Chick-peas have been found in the excavations of Neolithic Swiss iske dwellings, but the vegetable may go back even farther than that. Eastern Sicily has a dish made by putting chick-peas and heated pebbles into the same receptacle and stirring them violently until the heat from the pebbles has cooked the chick-peas. Cooking habits die hard, and this one suggests an origin antedating pottery which could be placed over a fire—which was invented in Neolithic times.

Chick-peas were grown in the hanging gardens of Babylon, ers, as many persons assume, but primarily to fruit and vegetables. Vast fields of chick-peas were ervn in ancient Egypt; and in Homer's time, when the Greeks called the chick-nes. erebinthos. not much else was available in the way of vegetables except peas, broad beans, lentils and the ubiquitous onion. In ancient Gaul, chick-peas appeared in vegetable soups at least as early as the 7th century BC. The pork and beans of the ancient world were the amphorae) in Pompeii for export to the rest of the Roman world. One ancient Roman story which has been tirelessly repeated by gastronomic writers is that Cicero was so named because he had a wart on his nose the size of a chick-pea (cicer, in Latin). But Cicero was not a nickname, it was his family name, so his wart could hardly have accounted for it unless it were a hereditary defect. (There was another Cicero family in Rome, wartless, so far as we know). The chick-pea does seem to provoke comparison with warts. In Italian, cece means: 1. chick-pea; 2. wart. Pois chiche, chick-pea in French, has served as a figurative synonym for wart. In Marseilles it is believed that if you eat chick-

When Charlemagne busied himself with restoring productivity to lands ravaged by war, one of the végetables he ordered planted on the pilot farms of his domains was the chick-pea, When the Sicilian Vespers of March 31, 1282, touched off a rebellion against the rule of Charles I of Anjou in which all identifiable Frenchmen were massacred, the French were betrayed by their inability to

During its long association with man, the chick-pea has had time to pick up an extensive list of nicknames. For scientists it is Cicer arietimum, which refers to a resemblance some persons have been able to distinguish between its shape and that of a ram's head. In English it is sometimes called the Egyptian pea, the chestnut bean, the Bengal gram, the Spanish pea, the dwarf pea, the chich and the caravance. In French, besides the normal pois chiche, it turns up as cicerale, cicer tête de bélier (ram's head again), erybynthos, or pois cornu (horned pea). In Italian it is cece (singuliar) or ceci (plural), in Spanish garbanzo or garavance and in German Kichererbsen. The present English name is the end remails of some centuries of indecision over whether the word should begin with the sound of soft C or of CH. From cicer in Latin it progressed to cece (pronounced tschatchay) in Italy, to cice (pronounced seesay) in France until the middle of the 16th century, when it became chiche (pronounced sheesh), which was turned into chich-pea in English. Attracted by the word "chick," it then became chickpea by folk etymology. The large almost round yellow chick-pea is not a pea. It does belong to the same family as peas, the Leguminosae, but so do 13,000 other species, most of which are not peas either. The chick-pea is at least a member of the same sub-family as the pea, the Papilionoideae, but this does not necessarily bring it even within kissing-cousin reach, How-ever, the chick-pes is like the ordinary pea in that it grows in a ped, two grains (botanically the seeds) to each.

The chick-pea provides a maximum of nourishment for a minimum of expenditure, whether in the form of money or effort. It produces 88.8 kilograms of proteins on the average per hectare (about 2 1/2 acres) of land, the highest yield of any leguminous grain except peanuts; and 100 grams of chick-peas provide 358 calories, more than any other except peanuts hipine seeds.

Famine Areas

This high nutritional yield ikes the chick-pea a food particularly important in famine areas, Draw a map of the world showing the density of chick-pea consumption, and you would be pretty close to having a map of poverty. If you were asked to name the country most closely associated in your mind with famine, you would be likely to pick India; India (where the chick-pea is smaller than in Europe and is particularly hardskinned) is precisely the country where this vegetable plays the most important part in the normal

Africa, a land of frequent food shortages, ranks second in dependence upon the chick-pea; it is the second most important leguminous grain in Ethiopia and Tunisia (but in Tunisia it is a very poor second to the broad bean, which supplies 75 per cent of the needs in this category of food, compared to 15 per cent for chick-pea and 7 per cent for lentil). ### French Firm's Profit Rises

PARIS. Oct. 9 (AP-DJ) .-Profits rose 38.7 per cent at Rhône-Poulenc during the first half, the chemicals and synthetic fibers concern reported today.

The company said its earnings, before depreciation, provisions and taxes, totaled 83.2 million frances ($17.6 million), up from 60 million francs in the same period a

The holding company said first-half results were not indicative of the year's trend because most of the dividends from its subsidiaries are received during the second half. The group's consolidated turnover rose 49.9 per cent to 10.829 billion francs from 7.224 billion. In a letter to shareholders, the company warned that because of a slowdown in demand both in France and abroad, and the general climate of uncertainty, business is likely to decline while operating costs continue to grow.

Rhône-Poulenc Textile plans to substantially reduce output of certain synethetic fibers following a steady decline in orders, company sources said,

Plans call for immediate cuts of between 20 and 30 per cent in the production of polyamides and polyester fibers from 1973 levels and as much as 40 per cent for acrylic fibers, the sources said.

The company blumed the decline in orders on credit restrictions on buyers, who are being forced to use the large "precautionary" stocks made earlier this year in anticipation of price in-

Notes of Under 4 Years Subject to New Rules

BONN Oct. 9 (AP-DJ) — The Finance Ministry said today that the indirect sale of government promissory notes to foreigners will in future be limited to notes more than four years' matu-

The ministry said that with this decision the same rule will cover the notes as applies to other fixed-interest securities.

A ministry official disclosed last week that the government has sold more than 500 million deutsche marks of notes since Sept. II to West German banks, which were then free to place them with foreigners. Earlier in September the Cabinet eased certain restrictions on foreign borrowings by Germans.

For the past several years, government notes had carried a warning that they could not be purchased legally by foreigners This warning was dropped follow-ing last month's cabinet meet-

The Bundesbank opposed the indirect foreign borrowing used ... finance the federal budgetary deficit, claiming it would bring unwanted foreign currency into the country and might undermine the central bank's tight money policy. It contended the government notes should be treated as fixedinterest securities with a dura-tion of four years or less, which still are barred to foreigners despite the Sept. 11 decision.

The Finance Ministry has now agreed to this classification. Ministry sources said they believed the remaining budget deficit could be financed on the domestic capital market without resort to more indirect foreign DOTTOWING The sources said today's decision matched the wishes of the Bundesbank, whose vice-president, Otmar Emminger, met here yesterday with Finance Ministry officials. The sources said, however, that the government was acting voluntarily in accepting the new classification of its notes. They said the classification was not required by law.

Notes involved in the foreign borrowing reportedly carried an interest rate fractionally over 10 per cent and had a duration of

Bougainville Agreement Detailed

Bougainville Copper will pay the Papua New Guinea government an extra $55 million (Australian) in revenue this year, forfeit all its tax privileges and pay an excess profits tax designed to limit it to a 15 per cent return on its invest-ment. Under the terms of a new agreement, reached after six months of negotiations, a 70per-cent excess profits tax will become operative at a figure of A$87.2 million. Profits below that level will be texted at the standard rate of 33 1/3 per cent. The agreement ends Bougainville's tax privileges, which were to extend until 1978-79 under an agreement signed in 1967. The agreement also revokes accelerated depreciation tax provisions that could have delayed tax payments, and closes a loophole that allowed the company to exclude 20 per cent of its income from tax calculations. The company will no longer be exempt from normal import duties, stamp duties, vehicle registration fees and other similar charges. When the agreement comes before the Cabinet for approval next week, ministers will be asked to consider government control on the company's business advisory services, a guarantee that no new mines will be developed without local approval, and veto power for government directors over company grants and donations. Govern-ment officials estimate the new package is worth from A$200 million to A$500 million over the next 10 years, depending on copper prices.

Xerox Offers to Settle FTC Complaint The U.S. Federal Trade Commission is considering an offer by Xerox to settle the agency's anti-trust complaint. Under the terms of the agreement, Xerox would be required to make available certain existing technology on its office copier products to its U.S. patent licensees, exhiding IBM, for five years and for U.S. use only. Xerox would also be required to make certain modifications in its volume discount pricing policies. But it would not be required to make any changes in its sales price policy, leased equipment servicing policy or relationship with its subidiaries and affiliates including Rank-Xerox and Fuji-Xerox. Xerox had initially chal-lenged the FIC's 1973 charges that the company has monopolized the office copier machine in-dustry and had rejected an early opportunity to settle the case. But the FTC now says the complaint "has been withdrawn from adjudication" to allow consideration of "a proposed con-sent order." There was no hint why the com-

Omissions Outscore President's 10 Points

Ford's Economic Program: An Analysis

By Hobart Rowen WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (WP) .-

President Ford's economic program is more notable for its omissions than the 10 points the President proposed to "put our... economic house in order." For all the talk about the need to cut energy consumption, the President not only ducked the politically-sensitive issue of gasoline taxes, but shied away from mandatory conservation measures in favor of the same old batch of voluntary suggestions.

To raise revenues, the President failed to ask Congress to plug some of the outrageous loopholes that favor special interests, but proposed to sock a 5 per cent tax surcharge on middle and upper income groups.
In this way people who have been paying their fair share of taxes all along are asked to pur

But the most serious omission of all is the absence of any plan to deal vigorously and directly with the key economic problem of the moment, the festering wage-price spiral.

As Mr. Ford surely must know, labor leaders who kept wage demands at a moderate level for year or more can no longer do because of the raging inflation. The explosion in the cost of living will force a new wage-price spiral unless something is done

Yet President Ford not only failed to equip his new council on wage and price stability with real powers or with suggested wage-price guidelines—he even falled to ask business and labor not to raise prices and wages to unconscionable levels. The Presid

"This program," said the cur-rent Treasury Secretary, William Simon, "is aimed at minimizing government controls."

So for the time being ideology has won out again, and the public will suffer with high inflation rates. How long will be public be patient?

Having rejected the help of direct action in restraining wages and prices, the President could not take stimulative action to get the country moving out of recession. At least the policy is consistent: Mr. Ford offers no dramatic initiatives against either the inflationary or the recessionary side, which means that the nation will continue to suffer from "stagilation." The cost of this deficiency can be seen not only in the weak program of tax relief to the poor (most was already in the works in the House Ways and Means Committee), but in a pallid version of the Jacob Javits-Arthur Burns public service jobs pro-

Inflation appears to be accelerating towards its final phases, and all inflations have always ended in tragic deflations. Prices are rising so rapidly, for anyone to see, that THE DINES LETTER does not see how those on relatively fixed incomes can possibly be consuming as much as they did a year ago—unless they are cutting back expenditures elsewhere. "Elsewhere" is going to cut back production and lay off workers to adjust to reduced demand, and the rising ranks of unemployed will in turn consume less. Thus does inflation spread its mischief in victous cycles. Even with dil flowing again, higher gas prices only add fuel to the inflationary fires, so to speak. New construction has already been virtually halted by an interest rate structure forced to remain ruinously high because of the gold crists. If interest rates structure forced to remain ruinously high because of the gold crists. If interest rates get too low, dollars will flow overseas seeking higher rates, causing enother gold flareup.

MONETARY CRISIS Repeated monetary crises in the last decade were warnings, in THE DINES LETTER's opinion, that Washington was not coping with the problem. Find out why THE DINES LETTER actually believes our monetary leaders do not fully understand gold. With a Wall Street reeling under the killing pincers of lower commissions and reduced volume it is now finally beginning to get interested in gold. Several gold funds are now on the drawing boards, and when their buying arrives, gold and silver shares should respond.

Low P/E ratio industriats do not impress THE DINES LETTER because, in their opinion, 1975 earnings will decline more than most now believe. Con Edison and Franktin Bank dividend amissions were only the beginning, in Dines' opinion. THE DINES LETTER has never recommended more long-term short sales than now, which is why they say they are so bearish, despite many bear market railies. Soon or later Dines will at least recommend taking profits on golds and going back into industrials—be a DINES LETTER reader at that time.

BUY GOLDS & SILVERS NOW?

DUI SULLI & SEND YOU: A special feature on which gold and allver shares THE DINES LETTER feels are best to buy now. It is no! too lete. Let them show you actual charts and specific advice on AGNICO-EAGLE. AMGOLD, ANGLO AMER. CORP., ASA, BENGUET, COEUR D'ALENE, DOME. EMPEROR, FRESNILLO. HECLA. HOMESTAKE, INT'L MINING NORTHGATE, PATO. PAMOUR PORCUPINE, ROSARIO, SUNSHINE, and UNITED KENO HILL. Find out what Dines thinks reconstructed currency furmail could mean to you. Find out why Dines so vehemently believes golds and silvers should not be traded for "Technical Corrections," but should be held—no mailter what.

WHY OWN GOLD? PLUS: A special feature, "What would happen if Americans were allowed to own gold?" Again, "Is there really any gold left in Fort Knox?" ALSO: A new feature on low priced golds & allvers, See our buy-sell, specific write-ups on Silver King Mines, Golden Chest, Colt Resources and Ego Mines, with more in conting weeks. Let us also show you a chart of Freshillo, with actual cernings estimates at various silver prices of $1.46 to $6 en oz.

8 LEADING CURRENCIES

AND: A special feature on 8 leading currencies, showing which are most backed by gold, and which are safest to be in at various gold prices. In clear language Dines clarifies a very complex area he considers what to investors, but for some reason largely ignored by the press. In ADDITION: A special chart of gold's relative strength back to 1948, what it looks like now, and what it means. Also: A special in-depth teature explaining ADR's, the advantages and disadvantages—and deegers, of owning them in the U.S. F.D.R. nationalized the netion's gold in 1934, making sold ownership a crime—could this happen to gold or silver shares?

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO

IN THE MATTER OF The Fund of Funds Sterling Limited; AND IN THE MATTER OF the Winding-up Act, R.S.C. 1970, Chapter W-10 as amended.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS AND CREDITORS OF THE FUND OF FUNDS STERLING LIMITED

TAKE NOTICE that on 24 September, 1974 The Supreme Court of the Province of Ontario, Canada, ordered the winding-up of The Fund of Funds Sterling Limited (hereinafter referred to as the Company) pursuant to the Winding-up Act (Canada) and appointed The Clarkson Company Limited of the City of Toronto, Canada, as provisional liquidator.

The court has set Wednesday, 13 November, 1974, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon at Court Room No. 7, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, for the hearing of an application by The Clarkson Company Limited to be appointed permanent liquidator at which time all creditors and members of The Fund of Funds Sterling Limited may appear in person or by counsel for the purpose of making representations in connection with the application for appointment of a permanent liquidator (creditors and members are advised that they do not need to appear at the time and place aforesaid in order to retain their rights to payment by the Company).

The estimated value of the net assets of the Company available to members, after provision for liabilities and the costs of liquidation is approximately 1,360,000 pounds sterling, equal to approximately 1 pound 30 pence per share. It is expected that funds will become available to the liquidator on or about 31 December, 1974 which will permit an interim distribution to the members of approximately 75 pence per share on or about that date. In order to assist members with the preparation of their claims, information, including a form of proof of claim to be completed by the members, is being prepared and will be sent to all members on or before 30 October, 1974. Members may therefore wish to await the receipt of the proof of claim form before filing The provisional liquidator believes that the records of the Company in its ession have been carefully maintained. However, any member who has reason to believe that his present status or address has not been communicated to the Company is invited to write to the provisional liquidator immediately at the address set out below

Members and creditors are advised, however, that, subject to such further order as the Court may deem just, those who have not notified the liquidator in writing of their claims on or before 30 November, 1974 shall have no right to have their claims dealt with or paid by the liquidator.

DATED at Toronto, Canada, this 27th day of September, 1974.

THE CLARKSON COMPANY LIMITED, POST OFFICE BOX 254, THE TOBONTO-DOMINION CENTRE, TORONTO, ONTARIO, M5K 1J7.

NOTE: Fund of Funds Starting is a mutual fund which was sold under the auspices of The LO.S. Investment Program. It should not be confused with Fund of Funds Limited, the Dollar Mutual Fund which was also sold under the LO.S. Investment Program.

EIGHT MORTAL LADIES POSSESSEI A Book of Stories

By Tennessee Williams. 100 pp. New Directions Cloth $6. Paper $1.95.

Reviewed by Edmund White

As a writer of fiction, Tennessee Williams has two things going for him: he is never dull; and he knows how to ingratiate himself. If, in this collection of six new short storics. Williams is so captivating as a narrator, it is because he had invented a tone of voice that is both racy and genteel, that slyly alternates between juicy vulgarity and the mellifluous circumlocutions of a gentleman of the old school. a specimen passage: Here's Why, this old fart has gone senile". Sabbatha shricked to her audience of one, 2 young man whose Mediterranean aspects of character and appearance had magically survived his past ten years of sharing life with Sab-batha in her several retreats." The touches of cultivated diction ("aspects." "retreats") are amusing and are read (as they no doubt were written) with a smile. At times the earthiness and the elegance come together in a paragraph that is peculiarly lovely and moving: "The morning light did not seem to care for the city, it seemed to be creeping into it and around it with understand-able aversion. The city and the morning were embracing each other as if they'd been hired to perform an act of intimacy that was equally abhorrent to them both.

The important quality in Williams's style (as befits a playwright) is that it is spoken; you can imagine someone (an eloquent and mannered someone, of course) drawing you aside and telling you these sweet some-things. And because a conversational voice is recounting an incident of interest (usually of bi-zarre interest), Williams appears to write effortlessly. He never seems to fuss over exposition or scene-painting, no more than you would fuss if you were telling one of your best after-dinner stories.

Some of the pieces in this collection, however, might sound a good deal better if told over brandy and cigars. In fact, one, "Miss Coynte of Greene," is repel-lent in the cold light of the printed page. Miss Coynte is a Southern spinster, stifled by her nagging, ailing mother and beset by unfulfilled sexual longings. Once Miss Coynte shocks her mother to death (literally), she's free to sate her lust upon a succession of black men who all die (literally) from overexertion. Granted this does not make for dull reading, but it did strike me as sexist and racist tripe, the product of a shallow if agitated imagination. The cliche characters (domineering mother, sex-crazed spinster, well-endowed bucks) could he conceived by a Freudian c. 1950—which is my way ing that if the story we silly it would be degradia concerned, author, read characters alike. Fortunately the book is ed by one perfect tale, August the Tenth." Two aged women, after living for 10 years in New York spat over their parrot. Le of intellectual friends other woman's old circle Lawrence school chun spat leads to dire threats and then to some sort ful, tentative reconciliat story is sad and funny, not so terse that it exc meandering feel of those frightening, inconclusive those simultaneous me called lovers' quarrels. should be read for this alone: the last stor fiamme," also merits att H "Eight Mortal La sessed" is such an unev tion, the fault may lie :

the American market fiction than it does author. From Wire Dispaiches PRAGUE, Oct. 9.—Team Canada, on its way home from a dismal tour of the Soviet Union, stopped over here long enough to lose another game. The team, comprised of World Hockey Association stars, lost to the Czechoslovak national squad, 3-1, last night.

The Canadians appeared tired and aluggish after their excursion to Russia, where they lost three games and drew once. The Czechs skated to a 2-0 lead in the first 10 minutes on goals by Jirl Bubla and Ivan Hlinks.

The Canadians rallied in the second period to score after 16 minutes 40 seconds when Tom Webster knocked in a rebound of a shot by teammate Bobby Hull. The Czechs were content to play defensive hockey in the final period after they made the score 3-1 at 3:13 on a goel by Hass.

The A's scored their second run of the game on their only hit—a double high off the leftfield bleachers by Reggie Jackson in the seventh inning. The blow came off reliever Ross Grimsley following a walk to Sal Bando,

But it was Cuellar's wildness which was the decisive factor that sent the A's on their way to a possible third consecutive world championship, and to their third straight victory after losing the playoff opener.

Cuellar, who beat the A's-and Hunter-in the first game of this series couldn't control his stuff from the start. He walked Baudo, Jackson and Joe Rudi with two out in the first inning before retiring Gene Tenace on a foul pop. He walked another batter in both the second and third innings and then gave up a run in the

With two out, Cuellar walked Bando and Jackson and then threw a wild pitch to advance the runners and dictate an intentional walk to Rudi Baltimore manager Earl Weaver elected to stay with Cuellar, who then walked Tenace on five pitches, forcing in the A's first run.

Grimsley took over with the count 2 and 1 on Claudell Washington and got out of the inning without further damage but yielded the A's second run on Jackson's double.

Hunter, who shut out the Ori-oles in the final game of the playoffs, allowed only two hits and faced 23 batters through the first seven innings. He was replaced by Fingers after Don Baylor led off the eighth with a single. Fingers retired the side despite yielding a long drive by Elrod Hendricks which chased Bill North to the warning track in center.

Women are forbidden to fight in the state, according to the commission's rules. However, in recent years the commission has waived its ban on women wrestlers and boxing managers.

No one seems to know whom the women will fight if they are licensed, certainly not each other because of their weight differences. Trimlar, who likes to be called Tyger, said she would prefer to fight women because "men dominate boxing, it's time for a change."

Fittipaldi Steers Toward Indy 500

By Michael Katz

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y., Oct. 9 (NYT).-Emerson Fittipaldi, the only world champion racing driver named for an essayist, has left to conquer new worlds.

The Brazilian, 27, won his second world drivers' title in three years by finishing fourth in the United States Grand Prix Sunday and said he would begin this week testing a different kind of Mc-Laren car-the kind Johnny Rutherford drove to victory this year in the Indianapolis 500.

"I've always wanted to try Indianapolis," said Fittipaldi, whose only race on an oval course re-sulted in a sixth-place finish last month at Michigan Speedway in the opener of the International Race of Champions series. The rest of the world utilizes road courses for automobile racing, but there's a lot of money on American ovals and Hittinaldi like his predecessor as world champion the retired Jackie Stewart, is astate at making his

Once goalie goes to the banch for ven a minor repair he is out of the game. His substitute must hen take over-and without penefit of a warm-up. The regular goalle can come back after the first play stoppage, however. The closer calls on fights and delays should help the fan. He may be eternally confused, however, on the new league set-up. No more, for example, are the proud Montreal Canadiens simply an East Division team. They are

Conn Smythe, Lester Patrick per cent and the Atlanta Flames and Charles Adams.

Confusion still reigns even among players on the new play-off arrangement. It is simple, sort of. The top three teams in each of the four divisions are in the playoffs. Of these 12 teams, the division leaders draw firstround byes. The remaining eight clubs then are paired according to records—the worst plays the best. After this opening round, the regular four-of-seven-game series starts.

The league has 18 teams with the addition of Washington and Kansas City. In two years it will have 20 and by the and of the decade there probably will be at least 26 clubs. Because the schedule has been increased to 80 games a club, the NHL may find that its solid teams will start having empty seats. Such strongholds as Montreal and Toronto are teeling a financial pinch. Because there are so many second-rate teams on the schedule, not every game is sold out. Once, people used to look over the obituary pages in Montreal to see if any season ticket-holders had died. Following is a summary of the teams, and my prediction of order

LESTER PATRICK DIVISION NEW YORK RANGERS-Why not? The feeling persists that although the Flyers had the better team last season, the Rangers had the better players. But the Rangers must attack their weakness—too many goals yielded. Is Ed Giscomin over the hill in goal, or was last season an aberration? Where will the Rangers' big gun come from? This is what they've lacked—a take-charge scorer. Perhaps Greg Polis, a new boy, may be the one. Perhaps Rick Middleton, up from the minors, Perhaps Derek Sanderson, with some good wings, can do it. PHILADELPHIA FLYERS-First, the Stanley Cup champs not going to push around people as much. Will this make them better without so many people in the penalty box? Or will it lessen their intimidation value? They still have the spectacular Bernie Parent, Bobby Clarke up front and a no-name defense weakened by the loss through an eye injury of Barry Ashbee. NEW YORK ISLANDERS-OR are chosen to sneak into the playoffs. ATLANTA FLAMES - Theoretically, they're wa; ahead of the Islanders. Good goaltending with Dan Bouchard and Phil Myre, a possible star in Tcm Lysiak. Let's see how far Boom Boom Geoffrion's motivation takes them this season.

CONN SMITTHE DIVISION

CHICAGO BLACK HAWKS-This should be the biggest run-away in hockey history. They are in a division in which their closest opposition finished 41 points behind them last season. So Coach Billy Reay will have the whole 80 games wondering how to motivate them. He'll figure out a way. One incentive is money. The division leader with the better record gets a lot of money in each conference. ST. LOUIS BLUSS—Ed John-

Cesare Maniago. VANCOUVER CANUCKS-Uncertain goaltending, uncertainties about how good their youngsters are keep guessers guessing about

KANSAS CITY SCOUTS-In this division they should have at least some incentive. Who knows? Desire may be all that's needed to finish behind Chicago.

JAMES NORRIS DIVISION MONTREAL CANADIENS-The return of goaltender Ken Dryden makes the Frenchmen transcen-dental once more, Last season they were merely excellent. Their leading scorer, Frank Mahovlich, is a deserter, but the Sam Pollockrun farm system will produce at least one young surprise. Meanwhile, Peter Mahovlich,

Trial Balloons

WASHINGTON-Deep in the heart of the White House, far from the prying eyes of the public and press, is one of the most important rooms in the government. It is the place where they blow up the trial ba!lons which are floated by the Ford administration. Thanks to a source who shall remain nameless, I managed to get into the room and see for mytion functions.

self how this allimportant opera-Buchwald

The room was very long—the size of a football field-and divided into workbenches. On each bench was seated a member of the administration or friend of President Ford blowing up large funnyshaped ballons.

They were so busy with their work, they didn't notice me.
"Say." I said to my source, "isn't that Mel Laird blowing a balloon over there?" "Yes," he replied, "the balloon he's blowing up has to do with gas rationing. He tried to float it last week, but it didn't fly." "So he's going to send it up again?" "He'll probably try it once more in a different shape and, if it's shot down this time, he'll go on to something else." Boy, you have to have a lot of air to blow up one of those balloons," I said. "Mel does. He probably has floated more trial balloons than in the Ford kitchen cabinet.

"How does he do it?" I asked.

French Shut Sex Show PARIS, Oct. 9 (UPI).—The Interior Ministry today shut down the only theater in Paris that featured live sex acts. The di-rector of the Théatre des Saints Innocents said that his show "merely reflects modern morals." But the Interior Ministry applied a law that dates from the French Revolution and ruled: "Respect of the human person, on the basis of democracy, does not permit expanding the limits of tolerance to exhibitionism and the presentation of sexual relations on the stage."

Silva Mind Control

in Paris

Last May. Peggy Huddleston taught Mind Control to more than 55 persons in Paris. Almost all have directly reported the experience has unriched and broadened their personal horizons. If you haven't heard about it, you really should.

What is it?

"Well, he meets with the President and they decide what trial balloon Mr. Ford wants to send

"Let's say the President is thinking about gas rationing but he doesn't know if the public will go for it. So he tells Laird to send up a balloon and see the reaction. Laird comes down here and starts blowing." "And then he sends it up?" I asked. "Not really. He has to sell it to somebody. If he sent it up himself, nobody would take the balloon seriously. So he calls up Evans and Novak and says, The President is going to institute gas rationing.'

"And Evans and Novak buy it?" "Every time," my source said. "They float it in their column and then we wait for congressional and press reaction. If it's negative, the President orders Ron Nessen to shoot the trial balloon down by denying he has any intention of rationing gas," blowing up one of those balloons to see it shot down?" "Heck, no. He works for the Reader's Digest, and this gives him something to do."

'Doesn't Laird get angry after

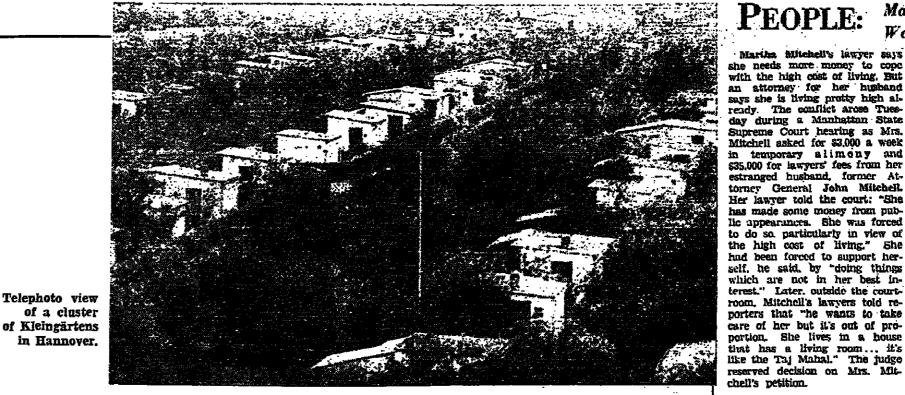

"Isn't that Secretary of the Treasury Bill Simon over there?" "He's blowing up a trial bailoon on a surtax on cat food. He'll probably float it at a chamber of commerce dinner in Chicago to-

"Who are all those people sticking pins in the balloon that Simon is blowing up?" They're Arthur Burns, Alan Greenspan, Roy Ash and Paul the economy, all Mr. Ford's economic advisers do is stick pins in each other's trial balloons." "Are my eyes deceiving me," I said, "or did Henry Kissinger just walk in?" "Henry's here quite a bit," my source said. "He just floated a balloon last week on getting tough with the oil-producing countries and it landed with a thud. I guess he wants to take

Watergate and he's still trying to get back his second wind."

Keeping Germany Green

By Elisabeth Piper HANNOVER (IHT).-Almost every German city has Kleingärten-Kolonien (small garden colonies; protected by 110 years of tradition and a law dating from 1919 which provides for compensation—usually new land—if the gardener is evicted.

No German government has ever touched that law although many city governments would like to since the Kleingarten occupy valuable building land. Some city governments are try-ing to get the law amended, but with active ecologists on the scene, it is not likely that drastic changes will occur.

The idea, at least, will be carried on—the idea of a Gorman doctor, who, in 1864, was concerned by industrialization and the workers' "losing touch with the soil." Dr. Daniel Schreber organized clubs that helped members rent small plots of land in cities cheaply. Nicely kept gardens with cabins or small houses (it's illegal to live in them), have dotted German citles ever since. Hannover has taken the lead in space devoted to Kleingärten —9 per cent of its area is covered by the gardens compared to the 43 and 4 per cent of Dortmund and Berlin. If Kleingärten are taken over by cities, the gardeners are given new lots near residential areas important because the gardens need daily care. But all attempts to reduce the number of colonies - meet stiff resistance from the gardeners, who are generally friendly people who offer the passerby some of their roses.
